The Breath of Life

"If you are wise and understand God's ways, prove it by living an honorable life, doing good works with the humility that comes from wisdom. But if you are bitterly jealous and there is selfish ambition in your heart, don't cover up the truth with boasting and lying. For jealousy and selfishness are not God's kind of wisdom. Such things are earthly, unspiritual, and demonic. For wherever there is jealousy and selfish ambition, there you will find disorder and evil of every kind. But the wisdom from above is first of all pure. It is also peace loving, gentle at all times, and willing to yield to others. It is full of mercy and the fruit of good deeds. It shows no favoritism and is always sincere. And those who are peacemakers will plant seeds of peace and reap a harvest of righteousness."

Health And Well-Being

Helping Heel Health

(NAPSA)—Most Americans walk over 100,000 miles in their lifetimes, so it may not be surprising to learn that 75 percent of people in the U.S. will have some type of foot problem in their lives.

One of the most common foot problems involves heel pain. The pain is generally caused by overstretching or stressing the muscle

There are a number of ways to treat heel pain, such as using pads, cushions, heel cups or arch supports.

on the bottom of the foot. However, heel pain can also result from skin irritation. The skin on heels frequently becomes dry or cracked, causing foot pain and leaving people vulnerable to infections.

Irritated heels are sometimes treated using a foot sleeve such as Visco-GEL Heel-So-Smooth. The sleeve is lined with a vitamin-enriched gel that releases mineral oil to soothe skin. The product is made by PediFix. The company, which has been in operation since 1885, works with doctors and consumers to develop an extensive line of foot care products for medical and cosmetic purposes. For more information or coupons, call 1-800-PediFix or visit pedifix.com. Products can also be purchased in drugstores or at amazon.com.

"I am the vine; you are the branches. If you remain in me and I in you, you will bear much fruit; apart from me you can do nothing. If you do not remain in me, you are like a branch that is thrown away and withers; such branches are picked up, thrown into the fire and burned. If you remain in me and my words remain in you, ask whatever you wish, and it will be done for you. This is to my Father's glory, that you bear much fruit, showing yourselves to be my disciples."

TRENDS IN AGRICULTURE

In 2025, agriculture will be characterized by increased adoption of technology, a growing focus on sustainability, and shifting consumer preferences. Key trends include the rise of precision agriculture, regenerative agriculture, and vertical farming, as well as a greater emphasis on transparency and traceability in the food supply chain.

Regenerative Agriculture:

⇒ Practices like no-till farming, crop rotation, and cover cropping will gain prominence, aiming to improve soil health, increase biodiversity, and sequester carbon.

Climate-Resilient Crops:

⇒ Farmers will focus on adopting crops and techniques that can withstand extreme weather conditions, such as drought, floods, and heatwaves.

Biodiversity and Pollinator-Friendly Practices:

⇒ There will be a growing emphasis on practices that support biodiversity and pollinator populations, which are essential for crop pollination and overall ecosystem health.

DEUTERONOMY 8: 17 - 20
You may say to yourself, "My power and the strength of my hands have produced this wealth for me." But remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you the ability to produce wealth, and so confirms his covenant, which he swore to your ancestors, as it is today.
If you ever forget the Lord your God and follow other gods and worship and bow down to them, I testify against you today that you will surely be destroyed. Like the nations the Lord destroyed before you, so you will be destroyed for not obeying the Lord your God.

Why Do We Need To Protect Our Grasslands?

Grazing land, also referred to as grasslands, serve as a cross-over ecosystem that contributes critical protein production for a global population, provides for rural economies, and at the same time influences our climate, eater and air quality, wildlife habitats and sequesters significant quantities of atomosphic carbon.

In the United States, grasslands account for over 650 million acres, about a third of our country's land mass. Despite their presence in all 50 states, our grazing lands are at an alarming rate - between 2016 and 2020, society lost more than 10 million acres from the Great Plains. Restoring health and vitality to our grazing lands is the first step to protecting this valuable resource.

1 TIMOTHY 2: 1 - 6

I urge, then, first of all, that petitions, prayers, intercession and thanksgiving be made for all people - for kings and all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness. This is good, and pleases God our Savior, who wants all people to be saved and to come to a knowledge of the truth. For there is one God and one mediator between God and mankind, the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself as a ransom for all people. This has now been witnessed to at the proper time.

Health Alert

Living Longer? Great! Now Stay Healthier, Too

(NAPS)—Americans are living nearly a decade longer than they were in the 1970s. That's great news—but staying healthy into your 80s and beyond requires extra care and an eye towards prevention. The protection provided by vaccines plays a key role in helping keep you healthy and preventing severe illness and potential long-term complications, especially for older adults and individuals with immunocompromised conditions.

As people age, their immune system naturally weakens—it becomes slower at recognizing and fighting off viruses. At the same time, lungs become more vulnerable, and chronic conditions such as heart disease or diabetes can make it harder to recover from illnesses such as COVID-19. Similarly, people of all ages with weakened immune systems—whether from certain health conditions or medications—face a higher risk of severe illness because their bodies also struggle to mount a strong defense. In both cases, a reduced ability to fight infectious respiratory disease increases the risk of serious complications and hospitalization.

Vaccines Help Keep You Healthy

That's why staying up to date on vaccines—especially for COVID-19 and other infectious respiratory illnesses like flu, measles, pertussis, pneumococcal disease, and RSV—is essential as we head into spring and summer. Vaccination helps boost our body's immune response and provides an added layer of protection when traveling and gathering with friends and family. In fact, according to data from the 2024/2025 season, COVID-19 vaccination was associated with:

- A 45% lower risk of hospitalization from COVID-19 for older adults
- A 40% lower risk of hospitalization from COVID-19 for older adults with weakened immune systems
- A 33% lower risk of emergency department or urgent care visits from COVID-19 among adults 18 and older

An additional dose of the 2024/2025 COVID-19 vaccine six months after the first dose adds a key layer of protection against severe illness for older Americans and people with weakened immune systems.

Why It Matters Now

COVID-19 isn't just a seasonal concern—it can surge at any time of the year, including during the spring and summer. Early in the pandemic, spikes were often associated with colder months, but we now know that outbreaks can occur during any season because the virus keeps changing so it can spread more easily from person to person. This makes staying up to date on vaccination even more important.

Spring into Summer with an Extra Layer of Protection

Immunity from previous doses can wane over time, leaving individuals—especially those 65 and older or with a weakened immune system—more vulnerable to severe illness. If you fall into one of these groups, it's recommended that you receive another dose of the 2024/2025 COVID-19 vaccine six months after your first dose to help maintain protection.

Talk to your healthcare provider to learn whether you should get another dose of the latest COVID-19 vaccine so you can enjoy time with family, travel, and everything else this season brings.

ISAIAH 49:16

LOVE IS MESSY

She was in her late 80s.

I was rushing around, trying to make everything perfect for a church luncheon. You know the drill—centerpieces crooked, someone forgot forks, and I was sweating through my nice blouse pretending not to panic.

She was sitting alone at a table in the corner, napkin in her lap, hands folded, just watching.

I walked over with a plate of food and a smile I didn't fully mean.

"I'm sorry we're running behind," I said.

She patted the seat beside her. "Come sit. Rest for a minute."

I almost said no. I had a list. I had a schedule. I had a million things to control.

But something in her eyes told me I needed to pause.

So I sat.

She looked around the room at the chaos—children laughing, crockpots bubbling, someone dropping a spoon—and said, "Isn't it beautiful?"

I laughed. "It's a mess."

She smiled. The kind of smile that's lived through grief and still believes in joy.

"Yes," she said. "But it's a loved mess. And that makes all the difference."

I stared at her.

She went on, "You know, when my husband died, I kept hearing the clock tick louder. The silence was unbearable. I used to wish for chaos—just one more day of noise. One more day of interruptions and dishes and someone needing me. Love doesn't always look like peace. Sometimes it looks like laundry. Or noise. Or tired feet."

That's when the lump rose in my throat.

I'd been seeing the mess as something to fix.

She saw it as evidence of love.

That day, I learned something sacred: Love isn't in the perfect. It's in the showing up. The doing again. The letting life get a little messy.

She didn't just remind me how to slow down.

She reminded me what love really looks like

Youth Villages is a private, nonprofit organization dedicated to helping children with emotional and behavioral problems and their families live successfully.

We provide direct help to thousands of children and families each year; partner with innovative states and high-performing nonprofit organizations that use our effective program models; and advocate for positive change to child welfare systems around the country.

Our approach involves intensive work with the child and family; a focus on measuring outcomes; keeping children in the community whenever safely possible; and providing accountability to families and funders. The Youth Villages approach produces lasting, positive change for children.

While we help children from birth to age 22, the majority of the children who receive services from Youth Villages are between 12 and 17.

Children come to us because of emotional and behavioral disorders, physical or sexual abuse, substance abuse, or suicidal ideation or attempt. Our LifeSet program is a bridge from foster care to successful adulthood for young people who have experienced foster care.

More than 85% of Youth Villages children have multiple problems, which may include developmental or learning disabilities, as well as family issues and instability.

All About Water

by Lisa Luck

It is estimated that 97% of water on earth is in the ocean but is too salty for human use. The remaining 3% of the Earth's water is fresh, although 2.5% of that is not available because it is frozen, polluted, too difficult to get to or is in use in the atmosphere or soil, according to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation (USBR). The other 0.5% is what is in use across the earth. Water is in constant use and is perpetually recycled so it can be used again.

The USBR reports that in the United States, fresh water is used for homes, 8%; agriculture, 33%; and industry, 59%. Water is necessary to grow the food we eat and to have water to keep ourselves and our homes clean. Water is distributed unevenly across the country. Alaska has 40% of the U.S. water reserves and Michigan has 41%. The other two states with an abundance of water are Vermont and Rhode Island. Most of the water consumed in the U.S. comes from either groundwater or surface water. Surface water comes from lakes, rivers and reservoirs. Groundwater comes from underneath the ground.

In 1974, the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) was created to tract water safety to ensure that water was not contaminated. This Act designated that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) would set the standards for the water that comes into homes or is used for agriculture or in industry. This insures the good health of all residents. The EPA tracts contaminants and regulates those chemicals that negatively affect the environment. State and local water departments regularly monitor water supplies for safety locally. Any elevated finds must be published in local newspapers.

Clean water is necessary for all life on earth. Pollution can render large bodies of water useless, affecting water supply. Worldwide, pollution primarily comes from agriculture, oil pollution, and radioactive substances. In the U.S., the majority of the pollution comes from agriculture. Fertilizers, pesticides and animal waste contaminate rivers and streams with bacteria and viruses. Oil pollution is widespread and mostly comes from consumers. Oil and gas drip from vehicles across the U.S. and wash into waterways polluting marine environments. According to the National Defenses Resource Council (NDRC), radioactive waste is primarily generated by, "... uranium mining, nuclear power plants, and the production and testing of military weapons, as well as by universities and hospitals that use radioactive materials ...". Radioactive waste is not easily managed and it can pollute land and water for many generations.

We can affect the quality of local water by how we manage waste. Reduce the use of materials that affect the environment such as pesticides and herbicides, and monitor car fluids to make sure they are not dripping into the environment. Always dispose hazardous materials properly to prevent contamination. Keep litter and organic debris out of stormwater catchment areas. The ease in which we get water gives the impression that it is an everlasting resource. Water is precious and in limited supply.

"Can God really clean up the mess in my life? Am I so important to Him that He would hear my voice above all the other voices that call on Him every day? Do I make a difference to Him when so many others seem to have more significant issues than I? Should I really bother Him if I don't really have much faith? Can God do a few miracles for me? If I don't have money to give will He still hear me?" We often hear of God's power but question whether or not He can do what He says He is able to do. Sometimes when we ask the question can God we do so with hope and other times with hopelessness even resignation wondering if He really is a can do God! In Psalm 78:19 our writer makes an interesting statement: "They spoke against God" because they questioned His ability when the Israelites were walking in the wilderness and had no food. They even asked, "Can God furnish a table in the wilderness?" They questioned God's ability to do something when they saw nothing. But God can do anything with nothing. Perhaps they forgot about Creation: "In the beginning God created" everything - and He did it from nothing. Nothing! God has unlimited resources and might that exceed anything we can imagine. And we must not forget His unlimited love! So, when we add His resources to His might and mix in His love then add His wisdom with the plan He has laid out for each of us, it is not "CAN GOD" - it is GOD CAN! Our God is a CAN DO GOD!

Learning To Appreciate The Power Of Pulp

(NAPSA)—A growing number of health-conscious Americans have turned to juicers and blenders to give their diets a needed boost.

There are a number of reasons for this trend. For one, it's believed a diet rich in fruits and vegetables can help prevent a wide range of ailments including chronic diseases. Also, many find it more enjoyable to consume their required servings of vegetables as a beverage—particularly if it contains their favorite fruit.

Unfortunately, many people may not be getting the most out of their efforts. That's because most traditional juicers remove the most important part of the fruit or vegetable—the fiber.

According to registered dietitian Dawn Jackson Blatner, RD, CSSD, LDN, author of "The Flexitarian Diet" (McGraw-Hill, 2009), a high-fiber diet may help lower total blood cholesterol levels and reduce blood pressure and inflammation. It may also help control blood sugar levels, aid in weight management, improve digestion and lower the risk for diabetes, cancer and heart disease.

"It's important to get both soluble and insoluble fibers from a variety of sources to be sure you're maximizing the benefits," said Blatner. "Blending whole foods together rather than consuming processed food and juices retains more of the fiber that we all need to be healthier."

Newer professional-quality blenders with superior blade technology, such as Ninja's new Mega Kitchen System, are helping to make it easier to eat healthier by turning whole fruits and vegetables into nutrient-complete juice and smoothies. These drinks contain the beneficial fiber and pulp that traditional juice extractors remove.

A new generation of professional-quality blenders with superior blade technology is helping to make it easier to eat healthier by turning fruits and vegetables into smoothies.

To help consumers take advantage of this new technology and leverage the "power of pulp" to retain more fiber in their diet, Blatner has shared one of her favorite recipes.

ACTS 2: 36 - 39

“Therefore let all Israel be assured of this: God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Messiah.”

When the people heard this, they were cut to the heart and said to Peter and the other apostles, “Brothers, what shall we do?”

Peter replied, “Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins. And you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. The promise is for you and your children and for all who are far off - for all whom the Lord our God will call.”

PSALM 116: 1 - 6

I love the Lord, for he heard my voice; he heard my cry for mercy. Because he turned his ear to me, I will call on him as long as I live.

The cords of death entangled me, the anguish of the grave came over me; I was overcome by distress and sorrow. Then I called on the name of the Lord: "Lord, save me!" The Lord is gracious and righteous; our God is full of compassion. The Lord protects the unwary; when I was brought low, he saved me.

Spring Yard Work? Put Safety First

- Know your machine
- Follow manufacturer's guidance
- Don't disable, adjust or remove safety devices
- Use fresh fuel
- Use manufacturer-approved batteries
- Keep kids and pets away from working equipment

Spring = yard work. When gearing up for spring yard work, remember to give your mower, trimmer, and other tools a quick safety check first. Use fresh fuel, clean it up, and keep kids and pets clear.

(NAPS)—If you're like most people, spring is the time to get out your lawn equipment to shape up your yard. But before you fire up your lawn mower, trimmer, and other yard gear, the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) reminds you to keep safety in mind.

"We all want to get outside and work on our yards, but your equipment needs some attention first," says Kris Kiser, President and CEO of OPEI, an international trade association representing outdoor power equipment, small engine, utility vehicle, golf car and personal transport vehicle manufacturers and suppliers. "A little prep can go a long way in keeping things safe and running smoothly."

Here are a few simple tips:

- Follow manufacturers' guidance. It sounds basic, but it's important. If you lost the manufacturer's owner's manual, you can usually find it online.
- Inspect your equipment. Check fuel, oil and air filters. Look for damaged or missing parts.

- Never disable, modify or remove safety devices.
- Use fresh fuel. Buy the amount of fuel you need. Never store equipment with fuel in the tank. Remember, storing fuel in hot, humid conditions will make the fuel grow stale more quickly.
- Charge batteries using an appropriate charger. Use the charger that came with your equipment and follow the manufacturer instructions. Follow their guidance on storing batteries properly.
- Clean and store equipment properly. Wipe off dirt and debris and keep your equipment in a dry spot.
- Always keep kids and pets away while operating equipment.

For more safety information about outdoor power equipment, visit www.opei.org.

WTF fun fact #1386

Unlike most members of the cat family, tigers seem to enjoy water. They swim well and often soak in streams or pools of water to cool off. The scientific name for the tiger is "Panthera tigris".

wtffunfact.com

Déjà vu

"Here we go again!"

How many times have we heard that expression? Yet again, it's an appropriate expression for the most recent Federal budget proposal from the White House that is working its way through Congress. Once again, the amount of spending by the Federal government in the proposed budget is far in excess of the amount of money that is expected to be received in the form of taxes. Yes, it's that awful term again: Deficit spending. By now, most of us have become used to hearing about the federal budget deficit, and many people have accepted it with a shrug of the shoulders. Many taxpayers say something similar to, "That's just the way it is". That type of quiet acceptance of our Federal government's spending far more than it brings in, and putting the difference on the credit card of the American taxpayer has gone on for so long now, that the American government's credit rating has recently received a downgrade on their credit report. Due to America's credit worthiness taking a significant hit, we now, as a nation, have to pay a higher interest rate on the National Debt. We are already spending more on the interest on the National Debt every year that we spend on the entire Military. This amount is estimated for 2025 to be a total $952 BILLION, or $2.6 BILLION PER DAY, and is the second largest spending category, directly behind Social Security.

That works out to approximately $2,800 per year for every man, woman, and child in the United States, or about $5,471 per taxpayer. What does the average taxpayer receive for that money? NOTHING!

The current White House administration is asking Congress to approve large tax cuts for the wealthiest Americans, and to pay for such tax cuts with cuts in spending for Medicare and many other programs that are designed to help many Americans who are at the lowest levels of household income. While the White House staff has claimed that the new budget will decrease the annual budget deficit (which adds money to the National Debt every year), this is a lie. It is well documented that the new budget will add $4.5 TRILLION to the annual deficit in the form of tax cuts, and reduce the annual deficit by $1.7 TRILLION in the form of spending cuts. That leaves a new INCREASE in the annual deficit of $2.8 TRILLION, and that is on top of the current deficit that the federal government already has.

The responsible course of action for Congress and the White House is to get to a balanced budget as quickly as possible. Simply put, our federal government MUST NOT spend more money than it takes in each year. We as American citizens must insist on it! Remember, it's OUR MONEY that they're spending.

1 JOHN 4: 7 - 11

Dear friends, let us love one another, for love comes from God. Everyone who loves has been born of God and knows God. Whoever does not love does not know God, because God is love. This is how God showed his love among us: He sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins. Dear friends, since God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.
